Dear praying friends,

Elisabeth Elliot said, "When our [plans] are interrupted, His are not. His plans are proceeding exactly as scheduled..." Praise the Lord that even in a time of changed plans, God is still in control, and He's moving forward! The Kenyan president, Uhuru Kenyatta, has just announced that they will start lifting their restrictions! I am excited for this progress as it will allow some gatherings and church services to start taking place again. Of course, it has been a challenge for missionaries and national pastors to keep in touch with their congregations over the past several months. However, they have been able to visit in some homes and utilize some technology that is available. Please keep the Shelby family and their ministries in your prayers as well as my family's ministries. Kenya is also beginning to reopen some travel. There will still be no international flights at this point, but the local travel will be reopening, which is a step in the right direction. Kenya has made these decisions conditionally as COVID cases continue to rise, and the country will have to lockdown again if this problem continues. I am encouraged that a fewer number of Kenyans have been diagnosed with COVID in comparison to other African countries, and I am praying that the numbers start decreasing soon.

After completing linguistics in May, I have been able to help with children's ministries in a couple different churches. I have really enjoyed being able to participate in more active ministry again! It has been encouraging to see some first-time visitors coming. These "interrupted plans" have given us a wonderful opportunity to point people to Jesus Christ!

In His service,

Erica Bohman
